I am interested in representing familiar scenes and places in a way which makes them appear new or different; as we walk along the street half absorbed in our thoughts and day dreams, the world around us reveals itself as a very subjective experience, tinted with emotions and expectations. To sit down with my sketchbook and try to analyse the scenery in order to draw it forces me to a state of mind where my perception of the world starts as brutal and objective, but as I continue working the drawing changes to become an expression of my desires, fears, likes and dislikes. To be pulled out of these mental mechanisms makes me suddenly perceive my environment in a new and fresh way, which is one of my goals, and my successes are when i succeed in representing a familiar scene which yet has never quite been perceived that way before.

I think I am living my dream now :) since I was little I wanted to start creating my own art professionally. But my dream in the future is that people feel happy and identified with my paintings placed in their 🏠. That they can imagine their own paintings by telling me the colors and sizes they wanted and I can make it real.

My dream is to be an artist who dedicates herself full time and makes a living from it.

Also I'm a speech therapist, so I would love to be able to learn about art therapy to make art with children from the disability field.

My long and short term goals would be

Every dawn, a new beginning, every day, a free gift: live each as if it were your last - fully.

My dream is to one day become an international accomplished model and actor. Growing up in a small town in Alabama the thought of being a model or actor seemed like a pipe dream. I left Alabama by joining the military. The military allowed me to travel the world, meet new people, and get an education. In the process of doing all that I realized that being a model and actor didn't just have to be a pipe dream. It could be a reality. It required me getting out of my comfort zone and making it happen. Comfort zones are where hopes and dreams go to die. Once I made the decision to go for it I haven't looked back since. I have been very fortunate to have met great friends and mentors along the way. To date my accomplishments, include being in multiple runway shows, being published multiple times, and being invited to shoots and shows internationally. The real challenge is finding ways of standing out in the crowd while still being true to who you are. I am very optimistic about the future and hope to help as many people as I can along the way.

I've been chasing the dream of being a musician since 1979. I started out playing all the clubs, key parties, bars that would let our bands in. Then I became a Christian and have been playing music in churches as part of the worship team and now the worship leader for the last few decades. All along I've been a songwriter writing hundreds of songs literally.

Along the way, I've taught music lessons, wrote a book about songwriting called the "Songwriting Fundamentals" and have released many CD's with music all over the web from iTunes, amazon, Spotify etc. I now play in various churches traveling sharing my love of music and The Lord. My son and I own a music store in East Liverpool Ohio called DC Music Store. My latest release "Blessed" has been successful and I'm thankful for that. Many doors keep opening. I encourage people to write about what they love and do it for that love. Enjoy the process and share the music.
