My name is Ashlee, I currently work as a data analyst in Montreal. I would like to think that people see my real beauty which comes from within. One of my dreams is to one day have my own animal sanctuary. I've always been a huge animal lover, and id love to be able to do this so I could save many animals.

My life has been a constant struggle. But I push through as much as I can. Since I was young, I always wanted to be a model. And one year I decided to take that step and did my first photoshoot. And since then, it's always been something I turn to that helps me build my confidence. I would love to one day make modelling my career.

Thank you for giving me this opportunity with everything I'm currently going through. You have given me a reason to smile again.

An Arizona native, with a large family. I believe in being affordable and still keeping expectational quality. I understand and recognize the beauty in all walks of life. My passion for photography began in 2011 and has continued to grow through the years. I am an old soul at heart but always willing to try new things. I love being creative and finding new perspectives. I would be delighted to capture your life's greatest moments small, or big. Photos Credits: Photography by Abrie

I'm going to start with my challenges first because they have taught me to dream, have goals and have given me strength in all my achievements. Growing up I didn't have the best life and I unfortunately let that take me down a very hard road. I became addicted to drugs and eventually started selling drugs with my boyfriend at the time. We eventually got busted which landed us both doing an 8 year sentence in prison. I ended up doing a total of 3 years in prison even tho I was a model inmate. I worked for the wardens wherever I went and even got 30 college hours while I was at it. But I knew that God had a plan for me! My boyfriend at the time Brandon did a total of 16 months and waited for the day I could finally come home. I got out and did my best to make up for the years I had spent away. I did a few jobs here and there to get by. Life is not easy as a felon and there were many forces out there that were against me. Brandon and I ended up getting married, despite all we had been through together. He was blessed with a great job that he has been a part of for almost 9 years and is now the manager of the entire branch. As for me, I was what your aspiring to become. Knowing who you are means that you a the best person for those around you. My family is everything to me and I know that finding the happiness of my dreams will lead to much more happiness for those around me.

at my first dental appointment since getting out of prison and hadn't been sitting in the chair for long and one of the dental assistants, Jennifer, asked me if I would ever want to work in a dental office and I said yes and the next thing I know I'm coming in for an interview and got hired as the doctor's assistant. So to do this job you have to have a license and you have a year to get it once you start working in the dental office. I did the testing and passed everything that was necessary to apply and got denied because of my felony charge. I got denied 2 more times after this and on patients lol! During this time my husband and I had our first beautiful, sweet, big hearted baby boy Westin and 3 years later had our wild, crazy gorgeous baby girl Adalynn and we can't forget about the best dog ever... Marshall. The last couple of years, life has been very

the last try I was given the opportunity to stand in front of the Texas state board of dental examiners and plead my case as to why I deserved to have my license. I was allowed to have recommendation letters and it was overwhelming the people that stepped in for me and wrote these letters, including the doctor I was working for. Needless to say, they GRANTED me my license and I have now been working there for over 8 years and I absolutely love my job and most of my challenging. I have a husband that works A LOT and we have unfortunately let that create friction in our marriage. I'm on a road to finding out things about myself I never ever knew were there. Modeling is something I've always had a love for. It's such a beautiful art that way more hard work than people realize. Since gaining the confidence to even dip my toes in this water I have not regretted one minute of it. I've met so many amazing people and found a confidence in myself that I've seen very few times in my life. I'm understanding, at a very late age, how important it is to know who you are as a person and
